Maniac! Soundmaniac... Michael Carter aka Preshish Moments surprises us with his excellent debut-album released on the fantastic and innovative Daly City Records label. Hailing from Berkeley California, Michael lives and loves crazy electronic music. In 2007 he was the winner of the San Francisco Laptop&Machine Battle. With self-made instruments and experimental sounds he left the audience with an open mouth. Now with the release of his debut-album called "Let's Be Friends", what a wonderful title, you become witness of his multitalented ambitions. I know you'll maybe find this statement a little bit extreme but Michael is a kind of Electronica Hendrix. Its fun to hear how "easy" he plays his instruments and complicated breaks. A firework of excellent tracks with a genius writing and producing. Michael changes the styles so fast that you have to listen carefully to hear all these hidden treasures. From Rock to Hip Hop over to Breakcore, Jungle, House and Experimental. But even he changes the styles like a wizard the album never loses its identity and its wonderful atmosphere. The album can be enjoyed on your sofa or during travelling by car, but the tracks are also made to rock the floor! This album is a colourful journey done by a genius artist who proves that electronic instruments are not dead electronic circuits. Absolute approvable! Perfect 10
